

Fund Objective

The Rock Capital IP Worldwide Flexible Fund is a moderate to high risk, flexible fund. The objective of this portfolio is to achieve capital appreciation over the medium to long term.

Fund Universe

Investments to be included in the ROCK CAPITAL IP WORLDWIDE FLEXIBLE FUND will, apart from assets in liquid form, consist of securities and financial instruments across the equity, fixed interest and property markets. The portfolio will typically be highly exposed to equities but the Portfolio Manager will have complete flexibility to vary the exposure to different asset classes as economic conditions vary. The portfolio will typically not hold more than 20 securities at any time.

Manager Commentary

The financial sector faced a crisis in March 2023, with three small-to-mid-size US banks failing. This led to a sharp decline in global bank stock prices, prompting regulators to respond quickly to prevent any potential global contagion. The crisis also raised concerns about the health of the global financial system, as two of the biggest banking institutions in the US had significant exposure to cryptocurrency. Furthermore, many banks had invested their reserves in U.S. Treasury securities, which had been paying low interest rates for several years. As the Federal Reserve began raising rates in 2022, bond prices declined, decreasing the market value of bank capital reserves. The crisis had significant and far-reaching impacts on the market outlook, and its ramifications were still unfolding at the end of the first quarter.

Interestingly, the US banking crisis didn't have a major effect on the global equity market and markets experienced an overall upward trend, with equities and bonds increasing in price. The Federal Reserve neared the end of its tightening cycle, and inflation measures continued to decline, although they still remain at elevated levels. However, the quarter was not without its challenges. There was significant volatility in the markets, driven by emotions and sudden shifts in the narrative. Despite these challenges, global equities managed to gain traction in Q1, despite initial recession concerns in developed markets.

Volatility is a statistical measure of the dispersion of returns for a given security or market index.

Tracking error is a measure of the risk in an investment portfolio that is due to active management decisions made by the portfolio manager; it indicates how closely a portfolio follows the index to which it is benchmarked.

Information ratio is a measure of the risk-adjusted return of a portfolio. In this case, it measures the active return of the manager's portfolio divided by the amount of risk that the manager takes relative to the benchmark.

Sharpe Ratio is a measure for calculating risk-adjusted return. It is the average return earned in excess of the risk-free rate per unit of total risk. The greater a portfolio's Sharpe ratio, the better its risk-adjusted performance has been (i.e. a higher return with a contained risk profile, where the portfolio manager is not taking excessive risk to achieve those returns).

Beta is a measure of the volatility, or systematic risk, of a security or a portfolio in comparison to the market as a whole.

Alpha is a measure of the active return on an investment. It represents the excess returns of a fund relative to the return of a suitable benchmark.

Total Investment Charge (TIC) is the value of the financial product incurred as costs relating to the investment of the financial product. A higher TER does not necessarily imply a poor return, nor does a low TER imply a good return. The current TER may not necessarily be an accurate indication of future TER's. It should not be considered in isolation as returns may be impacted by many other factors over time such as market returns, the type of financial product, the investment decisions of the investment manager and the TER.
